Informational Text and Critical Reading

150 Multiple-Choice Questions

Common Core-aligned practice for evidence, central ideas, inference, structure, author’s purpose, and critical reading.

50 Easy • 50 Medium • 50 Hard

Directions: Read each passage and choose the best answer supported by the text.

Passage 1: Urban Trees and City Heat

Cities often remain warmer than nearby rural areas after sunset. Asphalt and concrete absorb sunlight during the day and release heat slowly at night. Trees reduce this effect by shading streets and buildings; water released from leaves can also cool the air. Planting trees requires planning, however. City workers must consider mature roots, water needs, overhead wires, and long-term care. A fair program also distributes trees across neighborhoods rather than concentrating them only in wealthy areas.

1. [Easy] What is the central idea of “Urban Trees and City Heat”?

A. Planned trees cool cities.

B. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

C. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

D. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

2. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

B. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

3. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

B. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

4. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

B. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

C. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

D. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

5. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

C. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

D. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

6. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

D. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

7. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

C. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

D. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

8. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

B. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

C. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

9. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

D. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

10. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

D. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

11. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

B. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

12. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. A measurement explicitly reported by the author in every possible situation.

B. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A date directly given in the passage in every possible situation.

13. [Hard] How does the author develop the discussion?

A. By comparing fictional characters' personalities in every possible situation.

B. By giving instructions for an unrelated task in every possible situation.

C. By repeating one claim without adding supporting details.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

14. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

D. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

15. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

C. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

D. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

Passage 2: Why Bridges Flex

A bridge that moves slightly under traffic or changing temperatures is not necessarily unsafe. Engineers design many bridges with joints and materials that allow controlled expansion and contraction. Metal expands as it warms and contracts as it cools. Without room for this movement, stress could damage the structure. Engineers also calculate expected loads and inspect bridges for cracks, corrosion, and unusual movement. Flexibility is one feature of a safe design, not a replacement for inspection.

16. [Easy] What is the central idea of “Why Bridges Flex”?

A. Designed movement can be safe.

B. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

C. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

D. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

17. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

C. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

D. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

18. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

B. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

C. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

19. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

B. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

C. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

D. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

20. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

B. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

C. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

21. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

B. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

C. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

22. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

D. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

23. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

D. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

24. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

C. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

D. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

25. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

D. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

26. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

B. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

C. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

27. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. A measurement explicitly reported by the author in every possible situation.

D. A date directly given in the passage in every possible situation.

28. [Hard] How does the author develop the discussion?

A. By comparing fictional characters' personalities in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. By giving instructions for an unrelated task in every possible situation.

D. By repeating one claim without adding supporting details.

29. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

C. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

D. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

30. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

C. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

D. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

Passage 3: The Return of the Marsh

A coastal marsh near Bellport was drained decades ago for farmland. Over time, the soil sank and storm water increasingly flooded nearby roads. A restoration project blocked old drainage channels and replanted native marsh grasses. The first year brought little visible change, but by the third year, young fish and shorebirds appeared more often. Researchers also measured slower water flow through the restored area. The project did not eliminate flooding, but it suggested that marshes can reduce some risks while providing habitat.

31. [Easy] What is the central idea of “The Return of the Marsh”?

A. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

B. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

C. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

D. Marshes help habitat and reduce some risks.

32. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

B. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

33. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

D. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

34. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

B. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

C. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

D. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

35. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

C. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

D. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

36. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

D. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

37. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

D. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

38. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

C. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

D. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

39. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

D. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

40. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

D. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

41. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

B. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

42. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. A date directly given in the passage in every possible situation.

B. A measurement explicitly reported by the author in every possible situation.

C. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

43. [Hard] How does the author develop the discussion?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. By comparing fictional characters' personalities in every possible situation.

C. By giving instructions for an unrelated task in every possible situation.

D. By repeating one claim without adding supporting details.

44. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

C. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

D. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

45. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

C. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

D. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

Passage 4: How Libraries Measure Impact

A public library once judged success mainly by the number of books borrowed. Today, many libraries also track workshop attendance, digital-resource use, and feedback from residents. These measures reveal services that borrowing totals miss, such as help with job applications or online forms. Numbers alone cannot explain why a program succeeds or fails. Staff may combine attendance data with interviews and surveys, then revise services. No single measure captures a library's full value.

46. [Easy] What is the central idea of “How Libraries Measure Impact”?

A. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

B. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

C. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

D. Libraries need varied measures.

47. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

D. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

48. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

C. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

D. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

49. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

B. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

C. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

D. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

50. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

C. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

D. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

51. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

D. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

52. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

C. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

D. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

53. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

B. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

54. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

D. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

55. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

B. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

C. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

56. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

C. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

D. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

57. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. A measurement explicitly reported by the author in every possible situation.

D. A date directly given in the passage in every possible situation.

58. [Hard] How does the author develop the discussion?

A. By repeating one claim without adding supporting details.

B. By giving instructions for an unrelated task in every possible situation.

C. By comparing fictional characters' personalities in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

59. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

B. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

60. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

B. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

Passage 5: The Problem with a Single Story

When readers encounter only one account of a community, they may mistake a partial picture for the whole truth. A travel article might describe a neighborhood only through its restaurants, while a news report might focus entirely on a recent crime. Each account could contain accurate details yet omit residents' routines, history, and disagreements. Reading widely does not mean treating every claim as equally reliable. It means comparing sources, checking evidence, and noticing whose experiences are missing.

61. [Easy] What is the central idea of “The Problem with a Single Story”?

A. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

B. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

C. One account can still be incomplete.

D. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

62. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

B. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

63. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

B. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

C. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

64. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

B. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

C. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

D. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

65. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

B. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

66. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

D. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

67. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

B. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

C. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

68. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

C. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

D. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

69. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

B. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

C. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

70. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

C. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

D. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

71. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

B. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

72. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. A measurement explicitly reported by the author in every possible situation.

C. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

D. A date directly given in the passage in every possible situation.

73. [Hard] How does the author develop the discussion?

A. By repeating one claim without adding supporting details.

B. By comparing fictional characters' personalities in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. By giving instructions for an unrelated task in every possible situation.

74. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

D. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

75. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

B. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

Passage 6: Testing Stream Water

A school science club tested water at three points along a stream. At each point, students measured temperature, acidity, and dissolved oxygen, repeating each measurement three times. They found lower oxygen levels downstream, but the readings alone could not identify the cause. Rainfall, temperature, and nearby runoff might all affect oxygen. The club planned to test during both dry and rainy periods and record conditions at each site. The first results raised a useful question; they did not prove one explanation.

76. [Easy] What is the central idea of “Testing Stream Water”?

A. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

B. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

C. Tests can reveal patterns, not causes.

D. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

77. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

B. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

78. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

B. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

79. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

B. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

C. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

D. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

80. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

B. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

81. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

B. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

82. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

B. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

C. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

83. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

B. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

84. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

C. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

D. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

85. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

B. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

C. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

86. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

B. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

C. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

87. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. A date directly given in the passage in every possible situation.

C. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

D. A measurement explicitly reported by the author in every possible situation.

88. [Hard] How does the author develop the discussion?

A. By repeating one claim without adding supporting details.

B. By giving instructions for an unrelated task in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. By comparing fictional characters' personalities in every possible situation.

89. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

B. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

90. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

C. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

D. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

Passage 7: Repair Before Replace

Many household appliances are discarded because a small part fails or repair seems inconvenient. Repair cafés invite volunteers to help people diagnose broken items and learn basic maintenance. Organizers say the events can reduce waste, but their value is not measured only by the weight of objects saved. Participants may gain confidence and share skills. Some repairs are unsafe or too expensive, and parts may be unavailable. Still, a repair café can help residents make better-informed decisions.

91. [Easy] What is the central idea of “Repair Before Replace”?

A. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

B. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

C. Repair cafés build skills and reduce waste.

D. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

92. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

D. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

93. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

B. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

94. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

B. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

C. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

D. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

95. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

B. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

97. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

B. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

C. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

98. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

B. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

C. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

99. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

C. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

D. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

100. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

A. The passage is mainly a personal story unrelated to evidence.

B. The passage rejects all research and offers no information.

C. The passage proves a complete solution with no drawbacks.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

101. [Hard] What is the author's main purpose?

A. To persuade readers to ignore all contrary evidence in every possible situation.

B. To describe events without communicating any idea in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. To entertain with an imaginary adventure in every possible situation.

102. [Hard] Which statement is an inference rather than a directly stated fact?

A. A phrase quoted exactly from the passage in every possible situation.

104. [Hard] Which revision would make the passage's reasoning stronger?

A. Ignore information that complicates the claim in every possible situation.

B. Replace measured details with a stronger-sounding opinion.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. Remove the evidence and keep only the conclusion in every possible situation.

105. [Hard] Which title best fits the passage?

A. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

B. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

C. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

D. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

Passage 8: Reading a Climate Graph

A graph showing average monthly rainfall can reveal seasonal patterns, but it cannot describe every storm. Monthly averages smooth out differences between unusually wet and dry years. To understand flood risk, researchers may also examine short-storm intensity, soil conditions, drainage capacity, and land use. A graph is useful when readers ask what its numbers represent and what has been left out. It becomes misleading when an average is treated as a promise about a particular day.

106. [Easy] What is the central idea of “Reading a Climate Graph”?

A. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

B. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

C. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

D. Averages show patterns, not every storm.

107. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

B. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

C. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

108. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

B. The passage proves the same result will occur in every case.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. The author rejects all evidence about the topic in every possible situation.

109. [Easy] Why does the author include a specific example?

A. To introduce a fictional character and resolve a conflict.

B. To shift to a subject unrelated to the main idea in every possible situation.

C. To show that every alternative is completely ineffective.

D. To make an idea concrete and connect it to evidence.

110. [Easy] Which statement identifies a limitation acknowledged by the author?

A. The author has measured every possible outcome in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. The topic has no practical importance in every possible situation.

D. The passage contains no evidence or examples in every possible situation.

111. [Medium] How is the passage mainly organized?

A. It lists unrelated facts in alphabetical order in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. It tells a fictional story in chronological scenes in every possible situation.

D. It presents a mystery and reveals a fictional culprit.

112. [Medium] Which additional evidence would be most useful?

A. An unrelated statistic from a different subject in every possible situation.

B. A repeated opinion that supplies no new information in every possible situation.

C. A claim based only on an unsupported assumption in every possible situation.

D. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

113. [Medium] Which claim would the author most likely support?

A. One example is enough to prove a universal rule in every possible situation.

B. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

C. Averages predict every individual event exactly in every possible situation.

D. Sources should be accepted without checking them in every possible situation.

114. [Medium] What remains unanswered by the passage?

A. Whether evidence can ever be useful in every possible situation.

B. Whether the passage contains any topic at all in every possible situation.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. Whether every reader must reach an identical opinion.

115. [Medium] Which summary is most accurate?

C. A Perfect Answer to Every Possible Problem in every possible situation.

D. Why Evidence Should Never Be Questioned in every possible situation.

Passage 9: The Local Market

The Saturday market in Linton began beside a railway stop, where farmers sold produce to passengers. As the town grew, the market added bread, clothing, tools, and prepared food. Some vendors now accept digital payments, but others prefer cash because transaction fees reduce small profits. A council proposal would move the market to a larger parking area. Supporters cite easier access and more room; opponents worry the new site is farther from the railway and nearby shops. The choice involves trade-offs.

121. [Easy] What is the central idea of “The Local Market”?

A. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

B. The move involves trade-offs.

C. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

D. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

122. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?

A. A fact about a different topic with no clear connection.

B. A personal opinion unrelated to the passage's evidence.

C. The evidence supports a careful, limited conclusion.

D. A detail that contradicts the passage's main point in every possible situation.

123. [Easy] Which conclusion is best supported by the passage?

A. The topic cannot be investigated any further in every possible situation.

D. An Unrelated Story with No Central Idea in every possible situation.

Passage 10: Birdsong Near Roads

Some birds alter the timing or pitch of their songs in noisy urban environments. Researchers studying one species found that males near busy roads often sang at higher frequencies than males in quieter parks. The pattern may help songs stand out above low-frequency traffic noise, but the study did not establish that every bird adapts in the same way. Researchers controlled for factors such as time of day and season and called for studies in more cities. The findings suggest a possible response, not a universal rule.

136. [Easy] What is the central idea of “Birdsong Near Roads”?

A. The passage argues that further study is unnecessary.

B. Some birds may adjust songs near traffic.

C. The passage proves that one solution works everywhere.

D. The topic is simple and has no meaningful drawbacks.

137. [Easy] Which detail best supports the central idea?
